Everybody grieves differently

It is important to understand that grief is a natural response to your loss and that every person has their own way of coping. There is no timeframe for grieving, nor is there a right or wrong way to grieve. Some parents grieve publicly and are open about their loss and feelings, while others may keep their emotions hidden. Some overcome their grief more quickly and others can take years. Most parents will carry on grieving in subtle ways for the rest of their life.

"Our Children Change us...whether they live or not."

You may like to write down information from your baby's stay in hospital or your thoughts and feelings. Writing them down may help you to remember details down the track that may be lost during such an emotional time. Some parents have written poetry and songs about their experiences.

Special ways to honour and remember your baby's life

- Inkless Foot and Hand Prints
- Plant a tree in your garden in honour of your baby
- Have a Memory hand or foot cast made
